1. Introduction

Purpose

- 1.1 The Pendle Settlement Sustainability Review 2022 [“the review”] forms part of the evidence base for the Pendle Local Plan 4th edition [“the Local Plan”]. The Local Plan will guide development in the borough over the next 15-20 years.
- 1.2 The review assesses the current sustainability of settlements in the borough and their capacity to accommodate future growth. The findings will help to establish a settlement hierarchy, which will guide the distribution of development Pendle.

Background

- 1.3 This review updates Pendle Borough Council’s [“the Council”] understanding of service provision in the borough’s settlements.¹ It represents a snapshot in time capturing information at the time of writing. It cannot reflect changes in service provision which occur after this date. Any significant changes to service provision will be considered through annual monitoring and the plan-making process.
- 1.4 The following settlements – 17 in total – are assessed in this review:
 - Barley
 - Barnoldswick
 - Barrowford
 - Blacko
 - Brierfield (including Reedley)
 - Colne
 - Earby
 - Fence
 - Foulridge
 - Higham
 - Kelbrook with Sough
 - Laneshaw Bridge
 - Nelson
 - Newchurch-in-Pendle and Spen Brook
 - Roughlee and Crow Trees
 - Salterforth
 - Trawden
- 1.5 Bracewell, Winewall, and Wycoller do not have a designated settlement boundary. They are regarded as being within the open countryside, to reflect their distinctive character and the absence of any service provision. This status significantly reduces the scope for development at these locations. With no change to the prevailing circumstances, or national planning policy, which might otherwise justify a change to this policy stance, they are not assessed in this review.
- 1.6 This review updates the evidence prepared for the Pendle Local Plan Part 1: Core Strategy, adopted in December 2015, and the Pendle Local Plan Part 2: Site Allocations and Development Policies, which the Council stopped work on in December 2021. It re-evaluates the contribution that specific facilities and services contribute towards sustainable living. It also considers recent changes in attitudes, priorities and technology.

Document Structure

1.7 The document is structured as follows:

- Section 2: Methodology – Confirms the approach, data, assumptions, and limitations of the review.
- Section 3: Results – Provides a summary and analysis of the results of the findings of this review. A full breakdown of the results of this review is provided in Appendix 2.
- Section 4: Recommendations – Takes forward to the results and analysis of the review and applies these to recommendations regarding the composition and approach of the settlement hierarchy for the Local Plan.
- Appendix 1: Sets out detailed results for each settlement.
- Appendix 2: Confirms the data used to inform results of this review.

- 2.5 The presence of services identified in Table 2.1 has the potential to help to reduce car usage and facilitate multi-purpose trips (“trip chaining”).
- 2.6 Under normal circumstances, settlements with a broad range of services and facilities will represent suitable locations for development as they are able to support an increase in the population.

Scoring of Sustainability

- 2.7 The presence of a particular service within a settlement boundary is scored. A higher total score indicates a greater level of accessibility, which is a key influence on sustainability.
- 2.8 The presence of multiple facilities in the same use and the role they have in supporting a larger population is recognised through the assessment. Settlements featuring more than one primary school, GP surgery, dental surgery, pharmacy, convenience store, supermarket or Protected Employment Area attract a double score.
- 2.9 There are instances, where proximity or the presence of good transport connections, make the use of services and facilities in a neighbouring settlement a practical solution. Such services may also be within a neighbouring authority. Access to these services increases choice and gives rise to the opportunity to reduce the need for people to take longer trips by car. Their presence therefore benefits sustainability and is recognised through the assessment with a half score applied where identified.
- 2.10 The quality of public transport services is recognised as a major factor in influencing travel choices. A higher frequency of service is crucial in attracting trips which would otherwise be undertaken by car. Similarly, walking and cycling options are more favourable where the routes are safe and direct.
- 2.11 In response a double score is awarded to settlements served by bus services operating at a frequency of every 30 minutes or better, with a single score awarded to settlements served by routes (or a combination of routes) operating at least hourly. A double score is awarded to settlements which are served by an off-road cycling network, with a single score awarded to settlements served by cycle lanes within the highway.
- 2.12 The retail function of a settlement is also considered as the range of shops and commercial outlets available within a settlement, reduces the need to travel by car, and creates the possibility of multi-purpose trips being undertaken. The retail hierarchy has recently been reviewed through the Pendle Retail and Leisure Capacity Study (Lichfields, 2023). The draft retail hierarchy provides an accurate assessment of the role of each centre within Pendle. A double score is applied for a settlement which features a designated 'Town Centre', with a single score applied for a settlement featuring a 'Local Shopping Centre'.

Size of Settlements

- 2.13 A further indicator of settlement functionality and its potential to accommodate future development is the size of a settlement. A smaller settlement is likely to have a more limited range of services and supporting infrastructure. Significant investment would be required to accommodate any major developments. Size also has a bearing on how a development proposal is likely to affect settlement character and the perceptions of both residents and visitors.
- 2.14 The size of settlements is assessed through three indicators: population, number of households, and physical size (in ha). To gain an understanding of how settlements relate to each other and the wider borough, a percentage figure is given showing the proportion of the borough-wide total. Data is used from the 2011 Census. At the time of writing data from the 2021 Census is not available to a small enough geography to allow for meaningful conclusions to be made in relation to the indicators.

2.15 A score of 0-5 is applied to the average position for each settlement across the three assessed indicators. This is in recognition that density and household size vary across the borough depending on type of stock, geography, historic patterns of development, levels of deprivation, and cultural/individual choices. The following thresholds are applied for scoring:

- 25% or higher = 5 points
- 15% to 24.99% = 4 points
- 10% to 14.99% = 3 points
- 5% to 9.99% = 2 points
- 1% to 4.99% = 1 point
- Less than 1% = 0 points

Limitations

- 2.16 The review does not take account of service capacity, which is not directly related to planning policy. Whilst service capacity is likely to affect accessibility and quality, and have wider implications for health and travel, it is not a static issue. Service capacity can vary significantly due to changes in the population, migration patterns, the needs of residents and the availability of funding to expand capacity or improve service quality. Management and delivery processes can also have a significant bearing on service capacity and quality.
- 2.17 The review does not include an assessment of the availability land for development. The housing land available within each settlement is set out in the Strategic Housing Land Availability Assessment (SHLAA). Whilst the SHLAA provides a useful account of potential capacity, it has limitations. It represents a snapshot in time and can only account for those sites with planning permission and those that have been notified to the Council through the Call for Sites process. Experience with unexpected (windfall) development shows that not all landowners or agents engage in this process. It is also possible that the conditions recorded in the SHLAA may have altered since its publication.
- 2.18 The review does not consider broader constraints to development, such as flood risk, natural or historic designations, or policy designations. Whilst these constraints could limit scope for development, these constraints do not directly affect sustainability in terms of service provision, and therefore should not play a significant role in determining the settlement hierarchy. These matters are taken account through the site allocation process.

3. Results

Analysis

- 3.1 Nelson and then Colne rather predictably, given their size and historical status, attract the highest scores through the assessment. Both settlements feature the greatest range of services, facilities, sources of employment and recreation, and best public transport connections of any settlement in the borough. The settlements score highly for duplicated services, highlighting the size of these settlements, their capacity to accommodate development, and key role they fulfil for the borough and their wider hinterlands. Nelson scores slightly higher than Colne, owing to the proximity of Nelson and Colne College (the only higher education facility within the borough) and presence of Nelson Community Hospital (the only hospital), and the greater number of employment sites. Colne generally has a stronger retailing offer than Nelson, both in terms of its lower town centre vacancy rate, and three major retail parks/outlets located at Swinden Park, Boundary Mill and North Valley. There are more secondary schools in Colne than Nelson.
- 3.2 Barnoldswick is the third and clearly functions as the principal settlement within rural West Craven. It is relatively compact and highly walkable. The town offers a good variety of services, as well as providing sources of recreation and employment that serve both the settlement and a wider spatial area. Transport connections are more limited, which some public transport opportunities only available in neighbouring settlements. There are numerous employment sites, which are dominated by notable high-profile businesses.
- 3.3 The three towns of Brierfield, Barrowford and Earby perform a similar role and function. They operate as local hubs offering a small range of facilities and services (including shops, sources of employment and places for recreation) for a local population catchment. Brierfield, located between the settlements of Nelson and Burnley, scores the highest of these three settlements, with some of its service provision integrated with its larger neighbours. Public transport scores highly because of this proximity and the presence of a railway station close to the new Northlight mixed-use development. Barrowford also shows strong sustainability credentials benefiting from its location close to Junction 13 on the M65 motorway, and by providing essential services for its population and that within a wider rural catchment. It is also the home of Nelson and Colne College, helping to illustrate that it functions as part of the wider M65 Corridor. Services in Earby are more limited than Brierfield and Barrowford. It is close to Barnoldswick and clearly plays a supporting role in serving the needs of rural West Craven. Despite this, the town features a good range of services, shops and employment opportunities to help meet local needs.
- 3.4 The settlements of Trawden, Foulridge, Kelbrook (including Sough) and Fence scored between 15 and 10 in the assessment. Each settlement features at least one daily essential service (usually a school and sometimes a shop), reasonably frequent bus service and relatively good recreation provision. Trawden, with its strong community ethos, shows the strongest level of service provision within this group, with Fence having the most limited provision.

- 3.5 Laneshaw Bridge and Salterforth do not score as highly. Both settlements are located on busy bus routes and have good quality recreational facilities. They are also in close proximity to much larger settlements, with facilities used by some sections of the community in Colne and Barnoldswick respectively.
- 3.6 The remaining settlements have few, if any, facilities and have a very limited bus service. They are also limited in terms of their population and physical size. Residents must often travel by car to access essential daily services, employment opportunities, and formal recreation facilities.
- 3.7 Table 3.1 (overleaf) sets out a summary of the results of this assessment by category. A full account of the assessment made by settlement is provided in Appendix 1.

4. Recommendations

- 4.1 The results of the review present a picture of settlement sustainability based on the current level of service availability and their accessibility by sustainable forms of travel. These results allow settlements to be categorised in reflection of the variety and quality of services, indicating their broader role and their capacity for further development. Based on the findings of this review, it is considered that the four tiers of settlements defined through the Core Strategy remain valid and up to date.
- 4.2 To improve the accessibility of the Local Plan as a public document, the top tier of the hierarchy should be referred to as 'Main Towns'. The term is more meaningful to the general public and accurately reflects the role and functionality of the settlements forming this tier.
- 4.3 Table 4.1 sets out the recommendations as to where each settlement sits within each of the four categories identified above, based on service provision, access to employment, recreation, and public transport. Table 4.2 provides a breakdown of settlements and their recommended tier by spatial area.
- 4.4 Due to their close links and shared services, it is recommended that the villages of Kelbrook and Sough, Newchurch-in-Pende and Spen Brook, and Roughlee with Crow Trees are continued to be recognised and referred to collectively.

In Rural Pendle the provision of new retail facilities, to meet an identified need, will be encouraged. In the first instance rural retail provision should be located in one of the Rural Service Centres (Fence, Trawden, Foulridge and Kelbrook). Where this is not possible the re-use of existing buildings or development on a site within a Rural Village may be considered.
